It seems to us that there are some car drivers who are not aware of the fact that there is a speed limit on the streets of Lacombe, and that 25 miles an hour on the corners is about 15 miles an hour above this speed limit. An example will be made of some of these drivers if they don't use a little judgment inside town limits. This town is not a saucer track or anything like that, and it is for the safety of the public that these speed limits will be enforced. Drivers will take this as a warning and slow down.

French Farmers Saved the Day

The saving farmer is a national asset. Canadian progress to-day in all lines attests magnificently to the splendid qualities of thrift that have marked the farmers in all the provinces. The total returns from the field crops and animal produce have been only possible because of the disposition to make use in an economical way of all the wonderful gifts of Providence in this good land of ours. The same was abundantly true after 1870 in France when the frugal, thrifty farmers of that fair land made it possible for the Republic to pay off the hated German war indemnity of two billions of francs levied against them. The same spirit of national thrift built up France for the extreme test today—a test that is being tried by fire.

Thanks be, French heroism is proving true. The line is holding. The blood of the farmers is flowing equally well through the veins of France's daughters of the soil and so the national strength bends but does not break.

Canada is reaping her harvests of increased returns and money is being made as never before. Our farmers are earning the gratitude of all in their splendid efforts at production. That they will carry into their savings an equal foresight in conserving time, surplus against the future days of darkness and lower prices will be equally praiseworthy. He is well advised who saves his extra dollar until he sees which way the winds of tomorrow blow. Adversity blows a chill blast where there is no dollar in the savings.

A CHANGE OF TONE

The authorized interview that German newspapers have just published with the crown prince is interesting and illuminating. It is not so much in what he says as what he does not say. There is an entire absence of the loud boasting that made his sayings of early days both foolish and irritating. He has no word about the victory that is certain. He says that he never thought of victory in the sense that most people interpret word victory. He merely declares that the Allies cannot annihilate Germany, do what they will. He attempts to make his people believe that the war aim of the Allies include the destruction of the German nation.

Hindenburg, Germany's military idol, was quoted a few days ago as saying that the German armies had suffered a setback, but that such things were the fortunes of war, and one must reckon on occasional reverses. The Frankfurter Zeitung, commenting on the continued retreat of the German armies and the heavy losses sustained in men, territory, guns and material, admits a "painful setback." More admissions of this sort, and even less grudging ones may be expected.

After the notable Allied successes of the last week, the recapture of Roye, Noyon, Bapaume and Comblis, and the breaking down of the old Hindenburg defense system, it is impossible for military sophists to induce many Germans to accept the explanation of Capt. Salzmann in the Vossische Zeitung that "it is to the advantage of the Germans to entice the enemy into the trackless, roadless and waterless waste of the Somme." The Germans have had to evacuate strongholds and centres for which a few months ago they were ready to sacrifice hundreds of thousands of their veteran soldiers. Moreover, Paris is no longer threatened and the initiative has definitely passed to the Allied high command. Important lines of communication have been re-established and future operations have been greatly facilitated. To say that the Germans are giving up nothing but ruined towns and worthless towns is to talk nonsense. The war is not won yet by any means, but Germany knows it is doomed to defeat.

'Come Through' Coming to the Veteran Theatre on Wed. and Thurs. September 18-19th

"Thrilling! Think you've been held spellbound? Well—just wait till you see this supreme photodrama, by George Bronson Howard. It made New York sit up and take notice. Millions have talked about it. What the hardened critics say about it, New York Tribune—"One is appalled by so much cleverness." New York World—"Realism in every foot of feature." New York Evening Sun—"The Plot! Tut, Tut, its there, so why worry, Come through yourself." a dozen other New York papers said "Great," "Tremendously Clever," "P fascinating." Its the greatest two hours of thrills you ever enjoyed. You are going to talk about it long afterwards, and it will be shown at the Veteran, Sept. 18-19th.

Exit Vadaman

United States Senator James K. Vadaman has been defeated for reelection in the State of Mississippi. Vadaman was one of the best friends Germany had in the senate and the people of the state have shown the world how they regard pro-Germans.

Senator Vadaman is the man who said that "the United States stabbed Germany in the back, while France and England held her down." That "American youths are to be fed to the Moloch of war so the European people who prefer a king should be forced at American dictation, to take a Republican or Democratic president as their ruler"; that "the cause of this war was the interference on the part of Germany with commerce between New York and London"; that the war was "purely a matter of pecuniary profit."

In spite of the sentiments which he harbored in regard to Germany Vadaman posed as a pacifist. Here is how he was described by the New York Times.

"As the dupe and idol of the 'hillbillies,' the astute player on ignorance, passion, and 'pure white white prejudice,' the 'White Chief' the upholder of the 'White South,' the man who went to the senate with his tongue in his cheek, to get the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments repealed, as a shrewd old Indian draped in a 'Spanish cloak or poncho,' as the hero who was once drawn in triumph and a 'chariot' through the streets of Meridian by eighty yoke of white oxen, James K. Vadaman was an amusing figure in political vaudeville-melodrama. When the war broke out, he became a nuisance and a scandal.

When war was first declared between the United States and Germany many people pressed to believe that the strength of the German vote in the republic would prove to have a continuous hampering effect on the war policies of the republic. Shrewd observers, however, who know something of the sentiments which imbue the American people would have predicted a different way thinking. They did not believe that the American would stand interference of any kind, either at the hands of agents in German pay or at those of a few millions of voters of German birth or descent. The fact is that there are thousands and thousands of men of German descent in the United States army today, and some of them are among the best soldiers Uncle Sam has. As for the pro-German pacifist of the type of Vadaman his day is done forever.

Metro Play Shows Dance By The Star.

At Rex Theatre
A dance on a glass-topped table is performed by Emily Stephens, the star in "Alias Mrs. Jessop," a Metro wonderplay, which will be the attraction at the Rex Theatre, on Saturday, 14th Sept. In this picture Miss Stephens plays a dual role, one a proper and demure girl and the other, wilful and uncontrolled. It is as Lillian Ford, the frivolous girl that the star dances.

While her husband is away, Lillian takes advantage of the opportunity to give a magnificent dinner party, inviting her gaily-loving friends. She makes elaborate preparations, engaging a large orchestra and cabaret artists to entertain her guests. The wine flows freely at the dinner and Lillian becomes excited with what she considers her success as a hostess.

After the performance of a girl dance, while all the guests are eagerly applauding, Lillian jumps up on the top of the glass topped table. Gathering her dreyeres about her feet, she imitates, in motions of dancer, who preceded her. A dramatic scene takes place at a critical moment when Sir

Anthony Jessop returns unexpectedly.

Vengeance—and the Woman

Carol Holloway is not happy in working in a picture unless there is danger attached to it somewhere. There is plenty of it for her in the next Episode which will be seen in the Veteran Theatre on Sat. Sept. 14th. Miss Holloway (Bessie Blake) and William Duncan (Henry Blake) who play the leading roles, are pursued by outlaws and climb out on a tree overhanging a river just above a bad stretch of rapids and falls. From the end of the tree they drop to a flat rock and thence leap from rock to rock to the opposite shore. A slip there meant serious trouble but they got across safely and the camera registered a beautiful outdoor scene with plenty of thrills.

On His Merits

(The Calgary Albertan)

There is nothing more unfair, despicable, or cowardly in our public life than the persistent efforts of a few of our small bore newspapers and critics to visit upon a public man the offences of his family relations. That unfair and cowardly method of dealing with public men is nothing short of scandalous. It has gone so far in this country that one unusually cowardly critic is condemning A. L. Sifton because of the investment of the husband of the sister of the wife of the brother of the minister of customs. That seems bad enough. It is doubtful if in the whole British speaking world could be found more than one newspaper that would really condemn a public man because of the activities of relatives so remote.

But it goes farther than that. That paper likes about any paper that insists upon fair play, to pay lie men or discusses questions and public men on their merits. It lies about them and makes base and cowardly insinuations about their motives.

It uses the society column as a basis for another attack. It says that A. L. Sifton was in Alberta at the time of the reorganization of the Stewart government, and insinuates that he was a force in effecting reorganization. There is no particularly good reason why Mr. Sifton should not be in Alberta at that time or any other time. He represents Alberta constituency. He has been a resident of Alberta as long and longer than his dishonest critics. But the fact remains that he has not been in Alberta since the beginning of the recent session of the Dominion house of commons. He has not been in Alberta this year. It is a matter of no great importance but that is the fact, and his critics may verify the statement merely by inquiring at Ottawa.

The Albertan believes that every public man should have a fair deal, whoever he may have for a brother's wife's sister's husband and even if his brother is Clifford Sifton. The Albertan is no admirer of Clifford Sifton, and believes that he has been a sinister force in this country. It condemned his attitude on reciprocity in 1911, when the Calgary Canadian was re-joining in it, and it resented his action in attempting to give advice to the western provinces in 1917. At time when the Calgary News-Telegram was linking arms with Sir Clifford Sifton, A. L. Sifton in opposition to both of them was doing his best to secure commercial freedom for his country.

Mr. A. L. Sifton was an able administrator and a strong and progressive legislator for several eventful years in this province. Let him be judged on his record here, or his record in Ottawa since he joined the Union government there, upon anything he has done in a long eventful and useful public career. That is a fair proposal.

But his critics will not accept that. They try to discredit him because he has a brother, and particularly because that brother has a wife who has a sister with a husband who owns a vast timber land. In other words, the critics decline to play the game as it should be played, or to observe the rules of decency in criticism. They are just plain, ordinary pikers.

Unboasting British

Writing in the Philadelphia public Ledger, A. R. Carman pays a very fine tribute to the part taken in the war by the British Nation. Britain, the writer points out, was obligated by her treaty with France to send across the Channel 80,000 men. The Kaiser, measuring their honor with his own, thought they would perfumetorally and literally redeem this pledge—hence his remark about the contemptible little army.

After pointing out that Great Britain has raised six and a quarter million men for military service and that the empire had added another two and a quarter millions to this, making more than eight millions all told, Mr. Carman proceeds.

"England's contributions outside the Western front have been worthy of a great nation, even if they stood alone. Her navy has kept the seas free for the commerce and the troop transports of the Allied World. It has bottled up the German navy from the first. Her ships have coaled, fed and ammunitioned the Allies—for a time fed and ammunitioned the French—brought legions and food supplies from the Seven seas. We are proud of our swift shipment of troops to the firing line during the days of the soul shaking danger this last summer, but well over half of them went in British bottoms conveyed by British warships.

Then where haven't the British fought? The Suez was in danger. It was the British that protected it. There were the German naval stations the Pacific. The British supplied them up. Russia asked help by way of the Dardanelles. The British tried to give it. Intervention was needed on the Tigris. The British supplied it. The British were in the Adriatic. The British colonial troops freed Africa from the Germans. British diplomacy steadied the Moslem world when the Turkish Sultan and his Sherik-us-Islam proclaimed a holy war. The British troops are moving south from Archangel and are at Vladivostok.

Britain financed the Allied nations till we came in to share the titanic task. Her industries have clothed, munitioned and supplied them in various vital ways. The Germans say that she has prolonged her war. By that they mean that she has kept up the fighting spirit of the Allies and supported their morale. The British is a dour fighter and knows no end to a struggle save victory and death. He never fights a limited liability war—he goes in with his whole soul. The day the British khaki appeared upon the battle fields of France it was decreed that there could be but one of two ends to this conflict—the collapse of the British Empire or the final failure of Germany's dream of world conquest.

"But no one save the German intelligence department has known or ever will know half of what Britain has done. When it comes the poorest advertisers the world has ever seen."

No Joy Riding Next Sunday

An appeal has been made to the fuel controller for economy in the use of gasoline. If there is one difference more than another between war conditions here and in the Old Country that impresses the person returning from overseas it is the amount of motoring for pleasure that is done. Motoring as a pastime ceased long ago in the British Isles. But it is doubtful if in any part of the world it has ever been indulged in to the same extent as now in the west.

This is so obviously out of keeping with the vital needs of the moment that it is surprising a more active policy of curbing it has not been adopted before this. The first step is in the way of this appeal to our patriotic good sense but if this does not effect the purpose in view definite restrictive measures will have to be resorted to.

Sunday joy-riding is an especial source of economic waste and the fuel controller asks that next Sunday should inaugurate a new order of things. Those who use that day for the expenditure of gasoline, the conservation of which is required for the successful prosecution of the war, should know that they are making the task of defeating Germany more difficult to the extent of their indulgence. A trip into the country or about the city simply for the pleasure which it gives is not to be depreciated under ordinary conditions. Many get fresh air into their lungs in that way to whom it would otherwise be lacking. But the war makes it necessary that we should give up much that is desirable in itself and the time is here for restricting this form of pleasure to such motor trips as are required in our ordinary pursuits.

The joy-rider should take nature means of locomotion. He will not cover so much territory but he will get more benefit from the distance that he does walk. The fine autumn weather ahead of us should be a great incentive to walking.

But whether you walk or not, the appeal not to consume gasoline should be heeded. It is conservatively estimated that $150,000 can be saved next Sunday if through-out Canada motoring is limited to strictly necessary trips.

WE hear so much about the "lines" of the automobile that we are apt to forget the "lines" of a tire.

Surely if beauty is an essential in automobile construction, it is likewise an essential in tire construction.

Examine "Traction" for beauty—no unnecessary lines, no distorted "treadlets," no ugly, unsymmetrical gouges—just one powerful, resilient, beautiful balance. And all this is extra—extra over and above the greatest road mastery ever obtained in a rubber tire.

We also make Dunlop "Special" and Dunlop "Plain"—two tires that are in great favor with motorists in general.
